INTERVENCIÓN DEL PRESIDENTE DEL GOBIERNO, PEDRO SÁNCHEZ

Thank you very much and thank you Lei, thank you for your commitment and your friendship.

In a time when the world is rapidly evolving, agreements like the one that we've just signed with Envision provide the momentum we need to forge ahead a transformative chapter in Spain's industry history.

Our cooperation might be a recent one, but in only 3 years, Lei, you have shown your deep commitment to Spain, with projects in the fields of renewable energy, green hydrogen and batteries.

And today –with your new commitment to invest a billion dollars together with the industry to build an electrolyzer factory in Spain– you are not just contributing to our economy. You are helping us to build the future, to build a better future.

As you all know, Spain is a privileged place to take advantage of all the opportunities offered by green energy and the decarbonization of the economy.

We have a huge potential for cheap and reliable renewable energy generation; a diversified industry fabric; and a highly skilled workforce.

The commitment of Envision and its cutting-edge technology, will reinforce Spain's position at the forefront of the race to develop the green hydrogen value chain.

Locally producing key equipment for the generation of renewable hydrogen is crucial for the energy autonomy of the European Union.

Doing it, furthermore, in an industrial park with net zero emissions is not only a technological feat.

It is an inspiring example of this commitment to climate change policies.

These investments go further than creating quality jobs, which is of course always important, new technology or even new infrastructure. It is about forging a path towards a cleaner, more sustainable and more resilient energy future for Spain and for the world.

Together, we are laying the foundations for Spain to become a European leader, as Lei has said before, and a global player in the green hydrogen revolution. We are inspired by the potential of our cooperation, by a future where clean energy drives our industries.

To our friends at Envision, I want to extend my deepest thanks.
